To whom it may concern,

I would like to express my complete disagreement with the case that has been brought against Microsoft. I and many other Americans made the decision to voluntarily trade with Microsoft. They did not initiate force against others to make people buy their products. The only thing that Microsoft did was become successful by pleasing consumers like me.

This is the United States of America, a country that is supposed to allow her citizens to pursue "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." As an American citizen, I am willing to defend my country so long as there is something to fight for--freedom and protection of individual rights (including property rights). Without this, America is no different then her enemies.

Sincerely,

Pari Haridim
